

Author Guides: Member News magazine

Member News is a publication of the Institution of Engineering & Technology (IET). Published three times a year, it is a news magazine which serves the IET's active member community and conveys Institution news in all its diversity. With the introduction of the Knowledge Network, the dissemination and sharing of knowledge among members is paramount. Member News plays a vital part in this flow of information, allowing members to hear about and benefit from this knowledge sharing. The IET is global, interdisciplinary and inclusive of all engineering professionals. As such, Member News reflects and reports on the efforts of those members working in the different spheres of Institution activity. This is achieved by having a range of articles in each issue. We are interested in news, features, articles, comment, opinion pieces, letters and obituaries of prominent members. The magazine looks for contributions that:

- report on the very latest Institution news
- convey important messages to the readership
- profile a member
- reflect on the life and career of a prominent member
- report on a particular event or visit, including the activities of IET Networks around the world
- communicate the subject areas of interest to the readership.

Length and style

News stories in Member News are around 150-250 words long, and follow the standard news structure. Extended news stories or news features, with added comment and perspective, are in the region of 300-500. Features can be anything from 800 to 2000 words. Obituaries are around the 400-500 word mark and draw on a member's life and career, including achievements and any Institution activities with which the member was engaged. A high-resolution photograph should also be supplied.

Articles should be in a narrative style with lists and bullet points kept to an absolute minimum. Longer articles should endeavour to remain direct and to the point, introducing comment in the form of direct and paraphrased quotation to illustrate and substantiate points raised.

Images

Authors are particularly encouraged to submit photographs with their articles, which should be provided as digital images. Images sent by email should be scanned at 400 dpi for a 155x102 mm (4x6 inch) sized picture. If images are not readily available to you, the editor is able to source suitable graphic material. Articles should be self-contained and should not have references to other work.

Member News* online

The requirements outlined above are also applicable for submissions to Member News online.

Submission

Articles should be submitted by email or by post on a CD in Word or a compatible word processing format. The IET reserves the right to reject articles that are not suitable for publication. Articles should be sent to the editor, Member News magazine (membernews.editor@theiet.org).

The editing process

If accepted, your article will be edited to suit the style of the magazine and to fit the space allocated, if necessary. Please also note that the IET reserves the right to change the headline, standfirst and paragraph headings of articles. In addition, stylistic changes may be made to the text without your consent to ensure that it conforms to house style and reads appropriately for the magazine's audience. In some cases, it may be necessary to shorten (summarise or delete) parts of the article to fit into the space it is allocated during the design process.

Copyright

In line with common publishing practice, Bye-law 95 of the IET requires that wherever possible the copyright in articles accepted for publication shall be owned by the IET in order that it can be reproduced online and in other publications. While this formal requirement may seem somewhat intimidating, authors can be assured that their rights over articles, other than copyright, will remain unaffected. In particular, authors are able to reuse all or portions of the article in other works, with appropriate acknowledgement to the IET. Authors also retain the right to re-work the intellectual content of the material for other purposes. By writing an article for Member News, the author is agreeing to the above conditions in full.

Contributions should be sent to:

Member News, Institution of Engineering & Technology, Michael Faraday House, Six Hills Way, Stevenage, Herts. SG1 2AY, UK (tel +44 (0)1438 767324; email membernews.editor@theiet.org)